

Assistant Cabinetmaker (Independent Contractor)

Skilled craftsperson for museum exhibits workshop — flexible schedule, fascinating projects

Put your shop skills to work with a growing museum exhibits company! Museology, LLC is seeking a craftsperson or cabinetmaker to assist with exhibit construction. This is a part-time, contract position at 20 hours per week with a flexible schedule. Compensation is $25/hour. Museology's workshop is located in Northeast Minneapolis.

About You

Please apply if you:

- Value your skills
- Take pride in your work
- Take delight in improving your existing skills and learning new ones.
- Aren't afraid to make mistakes and learn from them
- Respect tools
- Understand or want to learn more about the characteristics of various materials and how to use them to best effect
- Know when to ask for help to stay safe in the workshop

About This Job

You will build museum exhibit components like cases, reading rails, risers, pedestals, and other odd little things that are needed. You will work mostly with wood and wood products, and sometimes with aluminum or brass components. Your work will be beautiful and accurate, built according to plans. You will be on your feet a lot, and sometimes lift heavy materials.

You will work with:

- Table saw
- Jointer
- Thickness planer
- Drill press
- Bandsaw
- Smaller power tools like drivers, sanders, and jigsaws
- Hand tools
- MAP and air-acetylene torches (we will provide training as needed)

About Our Company

Museology, LLC, combines exhibition research, design, and build aspects in one company. One of our core tenets is to connect people to place and time through story. We create effective interpretive spaces that reach viewers on multiple levels, both actively and passively. We believe in the power of engaging visitors emotionally and intellectually. Museology works with historical stories from all around Minnesota, and strives to make sure all voices are represented in the exhibits we create. We value and desire that same diversity in our work environment. We invite all interested people to apply.
